- It stopped working completely
- It wasn't working as well as before
- New installation
- Routine maintenance or top-up, nothing broken
- Following up on an earlier repair
- There was an issue with water inlet
- Some Part replacement

How did you first get in touch with whoever helped

8 responses

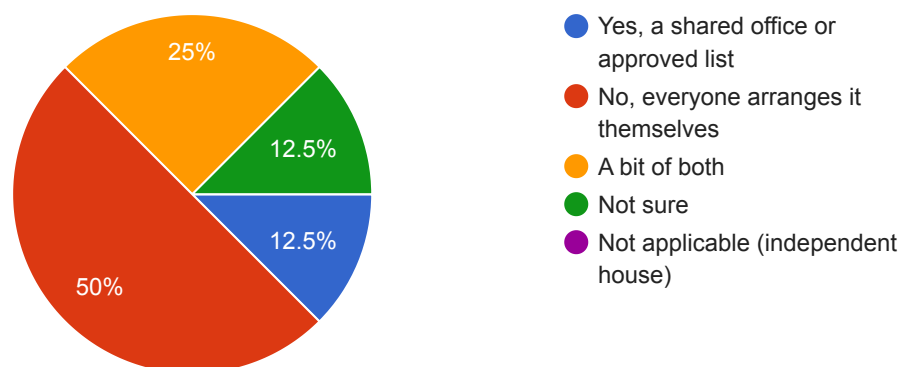

- Called a technician I already knew
- Called the brand's service centre
- Used an app (like Urban Company, Housejoy)
- Through my building/society office, or a resident group recommendation
- Asked a local shop

Does your building/society have a shared maintenance office you can raise a request with, or does everyone arrange things on their own?

In your own words

Has there been a small repair or issue at home that you just never got around to calling anyone about, or handled some other way instead of calling a professional? Briefly, what happened?

8 responses

None

The door of the refrigerator was not being closed properly.. there was an issue with the gasket.. we did it ourselves

There are no such incidents.

Yes changed the regulator of the gas cylinder.

Community technicians

I will fix it on my own

Initially calling my society person to check the issue of the appliance

Fixed a small issue related to by bicycle.

If a trusted person or service could handle this entire process for you next time, what's the one thing you'd always want to decide or approve yourself?

6 responses

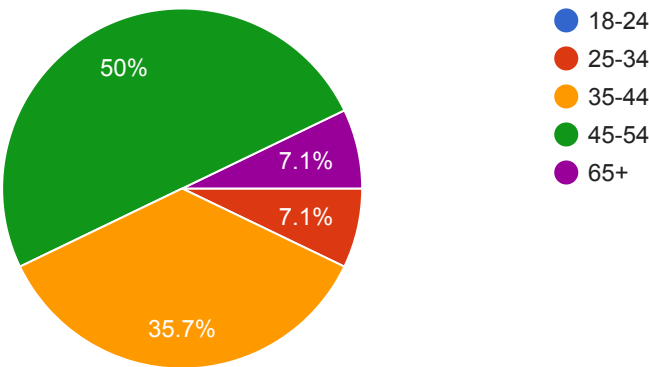

- Cost approval and home access
- Cost for the entire process
- Service should be excellent and hasslefree
- Problem should be fixed once and for all.
- Good & genuine service
- Plumbing related
